BEHAVIORAL BIASES IN INVESTMENT DECISION MAKING

Investing should be based on research, rules, principles, set guidelines and procedures; these are the pillars which set the foundation of successful investing. Emotions like fear, excitement, gut feeling, greed, desire, etc., should have absolutely no role to play in making investment decisions. But the reality is far from ideal, because when emotions come to play, we normally, immediately let go of all the logics and fall prey to our emotions.

The irony is, we usually know that investing is about principles, asset allocation, goals, risk and return tradeoff. We read, we hear, and that's how we become investors, but then here the underlying subject is money and we are emotionally attached to money. Often, we don't even know if we are letting our emotions dictate our financial decisions. It is said that the biggest enemy of an investor is his own emotions. And the biggest investing mistakes committed by investors are triggered by their own behavioural biases.

So, in this passage we have brought for you the most common behavioral biases that investors often fall victim to, how these biases manifest and you can avoid/correct for them.

1. ANCHORING

Anchoring is quite a common cognitive bias witnessed among investors, which means basing investment decisions on an initial piece of information. This initial information serves as the starting point, which we adjust, to arrive at investment conclusions. Say for instance, you bought a stock of XYZ co., in the month of January at ₹100, at the end of May the stock went upto ₹130, then the top management changed, and by October the stock came trotting down to ₹90. Now, you are holding on to the stock hoping it will again rise upto ₹130, then only you will sell to book the profits. In this case, you may be clinging onto the anchor. Buy, sell or hold decisions must be on back of fundamentals, and not on previous highs or lows. Don't let perceptions or experiences, good or bad, cloud your judgment ability, a past bad experience with equity, doesn't direct the future, it's the rudiments of the product that matter in the long term.

2. CONFIRMATION BIAS

Another product of extending our beliefs and preconceived notions to our decision making process is Confirmation Bias. For instance, you are really looking forward to the launch of the new Honda Civic for your next car upgrade, you have read good reviews about the car, the Sunday car shows are talking about the Civic, all the blogs you read people have written good things about the car, etc. All the information seems to be in the affirmative, so now you firmly believe that you have made the right decision. But have you ever thought that it is only because you are reading selective reviews and blogs. Probably you have subconsciously ignored contradictory views and negative reviews or skipped reading good things about other cars in the segment. In short, we are all ears to information which supports our beliefs, while filtering out everything that does not fit into our comfort zone. And when this tendency is extended to finances, it dilutes the investment decision making process. You may be looking at only that information which is in alignment with your notions, while ignoring the rest. Try to look at contradictory viewpoints, consult your financial advisor, he/she will show you the right path.

3. MENTAL ACCOUNTING BIAS

Mental Accounting Bias is the tendency to mentally categorize money into different mental accounts based on their source or on the basis of its intended use, and then treat the money in different categories differently. For Example, you had set aside a ₹500 note last month for buying yourself a book, but then today when you open your cupboard, you find that you have lost the note. You are sad and decide you'll not buy the book. Normally, had you 'not' dedicated this note to the book, and would have lost ₹500 in the usual course, the book purchase might not have been affected. This is simple case of Mental Accounting Bias.

Similarly, people take investing decisions based on the mental accounts they have created. For instance, in case of sudden inflow of money like bonus or inheritance received, people tend to be irrational in their decisions compared to when the source is their monthly salary.

Or say you have kept an FD for your vacation and at the same time you are paying a massive interest on your credit card bill outstanding. Logically you should break the FD to pay the loan since you are getting 7% and paying 25%, but you don't do so, since you have created a mental account for that money in your mind.

We must understand here that money is fungible in nature, the value is the same irrespective the source or the outlay. Hence, you must be careful of such mental accounts and the impact they may have on your investing decisions.

4. FAMILIARITY BIAS

At times our investing decisions are based on our connection or comfort with the product we are investing in. People working in banks often purchase their employer's stocks or banking sector stocks, we invest in stocks or sectors because we have researched a lot on this stock/sector and believe in it, and the like. Because of this bent towards our familiar options, we are restricting our investment horizon. There is a universe of investment products available out there, and we must choose the best from the lot.

5. LOSS AVERSION BIAS

The most common one, we fear the possibility of loss, and we are just not prepared to let go our money, under any circumstance. We hold on to the poor performers because we do not want to book losses, in fact we purchase more of the same infertile stock/mutual fund to average out the cost and cover up the losses that we have made. You have to accept the fact that a bad decision was made, book losses and move on. Our strength is tested in volatile times, when we see our investments falling. It's up to us, we can either fall prey to the bias, sell our investment to avoid losses; or we can do what we are ought to do, that is avoid the noise and hold the investment for it is for our long term goals.

6. BANDWAGON

As the name suggests, we have this uncontrollable urge to order what the people on the other table are eating. We often extend the urge to our investing decisions also, we feel other people are making money because they made better choices, we feel we are missing out on some information that they may have, it's a typical case of FOMO (Fear of Missing Out), and it can have disastrous repercussions. Every individual is unique in terms of his/her financial standing, goals, needs, priorities, risk appetite, so how can the investing process or products be similar? Hence, you must always be mindful that investing is not about making more money by following your neighbour, rather it's about gratifying your unique goals and needs.

To conclude, a large number of times, we follow our emotions, inclinations tend to influence our day to day decisions. Without realizing, you might have fallen prey to biases, while investment decision making. They say "The one who has mastered his emotions is mightier than one who conquers a city", it is inordinately applicable to investing, we must always stick to the fundamentals and follow our masterplan religiously. And your financial advisor is there to help you overcome these cognitive biases, to show you the mirror whenever your decisions are clouded by your emotions.

THREE PILLARS OF FINANCIAL PLANNING

Your financial plan revolves around your life aspirations or goals, and helps you manage your finances in a way that you are able to achieve these goals when they come.

Your financial plan:

- ▶ Defines your goals in numbers, that is in terms of time and money. Your goal to live a peaceful retirement would be the need to have "₹5 Crore in 25 years" in your financial plan.
- ▶ Breaks your aspirations into short and long term, your next year's vacation will be categorized as a short term goal and retirement will be categorized as a long term goal.
- ▶ Lays down a roadmap through which you can achieve these goals. Where to invest, How Much to invest, When to invest, lies at the center of the plan, to ensure a timely achievement of your goals.

So basically, your financial plan gives you a broad view of your life and the position of each of your goals in it, you get a sense of direction while taking financial decisions, since you can analyze the impact of the decision on your life goals. Hence, having a sound financial plan is of prime importance, for living a financially sorted and worry free life.

In this article we have highlighted the three key elements or the pillars of a financial plan, which will serve as guidelines for you while doing your financial planning. These pillars are: Time, Investment and Insurance.

1. TIME:

To begin with, the first pillar, Time. Financial Planning on-marked at the start of the accumulation phase of life, gives you the leverage of time. The longer the horizon, the higher the chances of a successful financial plan, the lesser the horizon, the more limited you become and might have to compromise on your goals. So, it's ideal to start financial planning at the beginning of your career, no matter how humble the beginning is. Carve a part of your income for your future, from the time you start earning, you can start with an amount as small as ₹500 or ₹1,000 a month, and increase gradually as income increases. It's important to start early, so that you are able to dedicate more of your present income towards a stronger and secure future.

2. INVESTMENT:

You may have income, you may have time in hand as well, but even time and income put together as detailed above, may not be adequate to make the most of your surplus income.

Generally, we save money from our limited incomes and then invest. But how do we decide the amount and the avenue? On what basis do we invest ₹50,000 in an FD, ₹1 Lac in Gold, ₹50,000 in insurance, etc.? What purpose are these investments going to serve? Are the potential returns from the investments enough?

To make the most of your saving, the following step, investing, must never be random.

- Our investment must follow our ideal asset allocation. Asset allocation forms a very crucial part of overall financial planning. There are a number of parameters that must be cared for while defining our ideal asset allocation, because different asset classes and investment products carry different risk and return characteristics. The asset allocation must take into consideration our goals, the time left for our goals to arrive and our risk profile.
- The investment product selection must aim at getting maximum returns while remaining within the boundaries of our asset allocation.

Your financial advisor has a big role to play in helping you arrive at your ideal asset allocation as well as in choosing the best investment products by narrowing down from the universe of options available.

3. INSURANCE:

The third pillar holding the financial plan up high is Insurance. Even when you have time in hand and your investments in place, an unfortunate event can wreck the entire financial plan, if not adequately covered by insurance. Hence, risk protection comes before return generation. Life is unpredictable, you don't know what's in store for you. You may continue to earn and thrive, and achieve your life goals with your income and investments, or you may lose all you have, including your investments to an emergency, thus jeopardizing your life goals and your financial plan. The idea behind insurance is securing financial assurance against the unpredictable nature of life, by insuring against all visible risks.

To strengthen your financial plan, you must secure yourself and your family with adequate:

Health Insurance: Medical costs are continuously soaring, one medical emergency or a critical disease in the family can gulp down all your investments and assets. Hence, you need to have an adequate health plan to provide for the gigantic hospital and medicine bills, while protecting your investments and assets for their intended purpose.

Life Insurance: Your investments are for your life goals, your kids' wedding, education, your dream house, your peaceful retirement life. But what if, you don't survive to see your dreams coming true? Will all these dreams remain unfulfilled? No you would not want that, you would want your family to live the dreams that you concocted together. It will be possible if your family has the resources to survive and the investments you made for the goals remain intact. An adequate term plan will ensure that your family lives the quality of life as planned, even in your absence, and they don't have to sacrifice their life goals.

To conclude, your financial plan converts your dreams into reality, by helping you manage your finances, your savings and investments better. And the power of three: Time, Investments and Insurance are the base of any financial plan, the stronger these elements are, the powerful your plan is, the simpler your will life be. However, developing a financial plan is an equally complex and critical task, because it's only when the plan is strong and free from flaws it'll be able to serve its purpose. So, having the support of a good financial advisor can be boon for your financial planning, his knowledge, professionalism and experience, can add great value in your financial life.

1. What are your views on the recent carnage in the equity markets?

Answer: Recent steep fall in indices is more of a reaction to strength in crude, stretched valuations across sectors and massive liquidity surge seen in the equity markets in recent times. With crude rising above $80/bbl, there is a massive fear of India missing its fiscal deficit targets, increasing inflation and slowdown in economy. This coupled with drying up of liquidity in certain segments in debt market lead to a massive blow out in equity markets

2. How do you assess the current situation of ? What impact earnings do you see going forward?

Answer: The current situation does not alter the long term growth thesis of above 8% GDP growth in Indian economy. This growth along with increased saving and channelization of these savings in financial assets should provide a spurt to the overall up move in financial markets.

Of the factors affecting the current situation, the key determinant of earnings going forward would be the levels at which crude stabilises at. With India importing 80% of its crude (3 million barrels per day of crude oil), resulting in a sensitivity of 40 basis points on GDP for every $10/bbl move in oil. We do not see a major impact to earnings growth of close to 20% CAGR over the next two years unless there is a major up move in crude.

3. How do you manage the volatility in your funds? How did you manage /limit the impact of market in your funds?

Answer: As a fund house we don't take cash calls but we manage volatility in our funds by investing in low beta stocks.

We have managed to limit the impact of market in our funds by adhering to our framework of holding well researched, liquid and quality stocks in our portfolio.

4. How do you make buy and sell decisions for the stocks in your funds?

Answer: We have a well-documented investment philosophy backed by rigours research which forms a backbone of our buy and sell decisions in our funds.

We invest in stocks where we have already done our research in terms valuations, business dynamics and market scenario.

5. How do you assess the valuation of different segments in the markets? With heavy corrections in the mid-small cap stocks, is the segment now attractive?

Answer: Valuation of certain segments like Media, export oriented sectors, private banks and selective gas stocks have reached attractive levels while certain segments like NBFC's have still some froth left.

The fall gives us an opportunity to buy quality mid-small stocks available at reasonable valuations. We see reasonable buying opportunities in mid cap stocks in the above mentioned sectors

6. What is your outlook from the markets and what would be your advice to the existing as well as new investors in equities?

Answer: Outlook for the markets from here on continues to be bullish. From consumption to construction, India remains one of the only markets with cyclical growth still on the up cycle. Along with this, certain macro data indicators like Inflation, GDP and IIP also point to a healthy outlook.

Going forward, markets are expected to benefit from good earnings growth, a pickup in capital expenditure, decent monsoon, limited exposure to trade wars and upcoming festive season.

Advice to existing and new investors in equity would be to maintain or increase their asset allocation to equity markets but be selective in stock picking and avoid companies affected by high leverage, changing government regulations and global linkages.

MF NEWS

Mutual Fund's AUM rises 14% to ₹24 lakh crore in Sept quarter

Mutual fund's asset base rose to over ₹24 lakh crore in July-September quarter, a 14 per cent surge from the year-ago period, driven by participation from retail investors and a spirited investor awareness campaign by the industry. The asset base of the industry, comprising 41 players, was ₹23.4 lakh crore in the preceding three months, showing a growth of just 2.5 per cent on quarterly basis, according to the data by Association of Mutual Funds in India (AMFI). The total asset base of all the fund houses put together was ₹21 lakh crore in July-September 2017. Industry experts attributed year-on-year growth to strong participation from retail investors, especially from the smaller towns. Besides, investor awareness campaigns by the industry and phenomenal growth in systematic investment plans also helped in the growth of assets under management. The industry has been witnessing evolved behaviour from the retail mutual fund investors, as despite the continued market volatility, the equity inflows into markets continue to be robust. Further, systematic investment plans continue to be the fancy of retail investors, as it allow investors to invest in small amounts periodically, it also helps in rupee cost averaging.

Despite volatility, SIPs inflows at all time high

The latest AMFI data shows that the mutual fund industry has been receiving an average monthly inflow of ₹7,650 crore through SIPs. This is the average monthly inflow of three months for the period July to September 2018. In the preceding quarter, i.e., between April and June 2018, the average monthly SIP inflow was ₹7,182 crore. In September alone, the monthly inflows in mutual funds through SIP reached an all-time high of ₹7,727 crore. Another good news for the mutual fund industry is the increase in the SIP accounts. Mutual fund SIPs accounts stood at 2.44 crore in September. AMFI data shows that the MF industry had added about 10 lakh SIP accounts each month on an average during the FY 2018-19, with an average SIP size of about ₹3,200 per SIP account.

IMF retains economic growth projection for India at 7.3% for FY19

The International Monetary Fund (IMF) retained economic growth projection for India at 7.3 per cent for 2018-19 (FY19), lower than the government's and the Reserve Bank of India's (RBI's) forecasts. This is, however, noteworthy as the IMF cut global growth projections by 0.2 percentage points. In its World Economic Outlook (WEO), the IMF said foreign exchange interventions should be limited to address disorderly market conditions, something which RBI Governor Urjit Patel also talked about. The IMF wants the RBI to tighten monetary conditions, something which it did not do in the October policy review. For the next year (FY20), the IMF lowered India's growth projections by 0.1 percentage points to 7.4 per cent. India will continue to be the fastest-growing major economy as China's growth projection was retained by the IMF at 6.6 per cent for FY19. For FY20, the Chinese economic growth rate was cut by 0.2 percentage points to 6.2 per cent.

India and US bilateral trade rises 119% since 2007 at $126.2 billion

Bilateral trade of goods and services between India and the US has gone up by 119 per cent since 2007, touching $126.2 billion, according to the data collated by the office of the United States Trade Representative (USTR). According to the data, exports were valued at $49.4 billion and imports were worth $76.7 billion. The US goods and services trade deficit with India was $27.3 billion in 2017. The data comes at a time when the two nations are locked in a trade war. The US goods trade deficit with India was $22.9 billion in 2017.
