WRITE YOUR WILL TODAY: IT ISN'T ABOUT AGE, ITS ABOUT UNCERTAINTY

Having a Will is one the most undermined aspects of financial planning. Most people in India do not realize the importance of writing a Will and often leave without one. We at times understand the risks, yet we tend to procrastinate such a crucial element of our finances, and put our family in an impasse after we are gone.

There are a number of factors that can be attributed to this reluctance:

1 Its' in the Mind. People procrastinate because of lack of a sense of urgency on the issue. If it is urgent and critical to have a term plan, then having a Will is as urgent and important. The base scenario is exactly the same in both cases. You may die tomorrow, the idea is to protect your loved ones and ensure that your loved ones have adequate money and assets to survive, even without you.

2 It's not in our culture. Probably, DhiruBhai Ambani also had a similar reasoning, he thought his sons would continue to be united, but the entire nation is a testimony to the fact that Dhirubhai was wrong here. To imagine your family fighting for and suing each other for property, would definitely not be a very proud moment for anyone at least from a cultural point of view, but it is the harsh reality of our life today.

3 I'll do it when I am old. Many people think that Will Writing is an old age activity, that is, when you have little time left on the planet. But the irony about life, as also pointed above, is it does not necessarily wait for you to get old.

4 I don't have many assets. If you have any assets, property, gold, shares, FD's anything that has monetary value, then you must have a Will. It is not something reserved only for the rich and is important and recommended, irrespective of whatever little wealth or assets you have.

And the point of fact is, for any investment or insurance, you have to carve out money, so you gotta think about it, plan your finances, and in some cases you might have to defer your investment also. When it comes to Will though, you don't have to labour much, you just need to sit with a good advisor/lawyer to pen it down and take care of the legal aspects.

What if you die without a Will?

If you happen to pass away without a Will, then the assets that you have acquired over your life in exchange for your sweat and blood, will not go the ones you choose. Rather they will devolve as per the succession act depending upon your religion, they will be distributed equally between your legal heirs like mother, spouse and children.

Even if you have a jointly owned house with your spouse, and you are at peace assuming that after your death, your spouse will become the owner, then it may not be the case. You will be surprised to know that rules for succession differ heavily in Hindu succession act or a Muslim or Parsi succession act. In case of any dispute, the court will follow the laws of the land, which may not be according to your wishes and also lead to creating unnecessary tensions in the family.

What is the process for writing a Will?

Writing a Will is pretty simple. You can write it on a piece of paper with your hand also, however it is advisable that you get it drafted and dated. It is also advisable that you seek professional help for the process, since it is a very critical element of your wealth planning and you would not want to leave any room for error.

The basic idea is to list out your assets, financial as well as non-financial, and write the name of your desired beneficiary against each asset with proper details.

You can change your Will, as many times you want. If it is a small change then you can do a "Codicil" that is a supplement to modify the Will. A Codicil is written in order to alter or add to the previous will. If however, there is a major change like an addition or subtraction in the inheritors, then it is ideal to write the Will again.

About Registration of the Will, in India it is not compulsory to get the Will Registered. And there is no difference between a registered

Will and an unregistered one, in terms of authenticity, both are valid documents. However, getting the Will registered ensures that it is safe, cannot be manipulated, damaged or stolen, since it is in the registrar's custody & secondly, since the Will is registered in presence of the Registrar, it cannot be challenged on grounds of forgery or incapable mental state of the person executing the Will.

Few points about Will Writing

- ▶ There must be at least two witnesses, however you should avoid making your beneficiary as a witness, else his/her share could be treated as void.
- ▶ You may list out your debtors whom you wish to pay off from your estate.
- ▶ You may also list out how your property or business is to be managed.
- ▶ Last wishes may be included in the Will but it is much better to share them with your family before you die, instead of putting them on the Will document.
- ▶ If you are excluding any family member or legal heir from getting any share of property, better mention the reasons for the same.
- ▶ You may also pen down your wishes for the welfare & guardianship of any dependent children, parents or any special needs person.

- ▶ Do not gift your assets to your kin while you are alive since you'll technically become a dependent then. So, it's better that you write the Will and let the bequeathment happen after your death.
- ▶ Review your Will at frequent intervals, to incorporate any changes in the list of beneficiaries due to change in family composition or otherwise.
- ▶ Inform your family that you have a Will prepared. You do not have to disclose the details, but there shouldn't be any bone of contention later for something, which you have already taken out time and provided for.

When should you write the will?

The time is Now!

Don't wait until Retirement to write your will, Will Writing is as important as having an emergency fund, or a health or term insurance. A Will doesn't prepare your family for the worst, it avoids the worst. Don't be a victim of procrastination or cultural limitations. Remember as they say, Where there is a Will, There is a Way!

BUYING A HOUSE.

THINGS YOU MUST REMEMBER

A home is probably the most expensive thing you are going to buy during your lifetime. It is a big decision, and is generally taken after a thorough evaluation of your finances and careful consideration of a number of other factors likely to be impacted. When you feel that it's time to make the big purchase and you set your initial steps into the market, exploring options, you become a vulnerable target to new builders, brokers who are self proclaimed property consultants, and even fake sellers. These people will try to lure you through attractive schemes and fancy statements about dreams, because of the high emotional quotient attached with buying a home. The dream can turn into a nightmare if you don't exercise proper care, since there are significant financial implications involved. The outlay is so huge that it will impact your present and your future for a very long time.

So, you must not fall in to any trap and do proper homework instead, before you take the big leap.

Here are a few points which you must keep in mind, before you buy your house:

What is the purpose?:

To begin with, you need to contemplate the motive behind the purchase. Whether you are buying to live in the house, if so, then buy only if you are sure you are going to live in it for the next 10 years at least. Or you want to let it out on rent, to create a source of passive income. If you are looking to get a rental income from the investment, then you must calculate the rental yield and capital appreciation. Property Investments in big cities with an eye on rental yields is not advisable but one can explore investing in many upcoming cities across India where there may be a housing boom over the next few years. Always remember that property investing is not suitable for short term investing. It has to be done with a horizon of over 5 years at least if not a decade.

Analyse the depth of your pocket:

Don't take a huge loan just because you are eligible. The real concern should be affordability of the EMI repayment. The interest rates can rise in the future leading to an increased EMI or tenure. Also a home loan is a very long term commitment, 10-20 years at least, during this time there can be gaps in income, emergencies can strike, but the liability to pay the EMI will always be there. With this view, the loan amount and tenure of the loan should be in alignment with your affordability, the EMI commitment must be low, as a general thumb rule, the EMI must not exceed 30 - 40% of your income. Also increase your emergency budget, to accommodate 6-8 months' EMI's in case of an emergency.

Spacious rooms, superior amenities, good locality, are all tempting, and often home buyers stretch their budget, to have all of these. And a little plus minus is okay if you are getting a good deal but one shouldn't get swayed to end up paying way more than the budget. A good way to judge the affordability is to calculate the total cost of ownership which would include the legal charges, the registration charges, stamp duty, broker fee, society dues, transfer fee, etc. and the cost of adornment of the house, interiors, furniture and electronics, all of these expenses can sum up to be a mammoth amount.

Set your priorities:

Define the quality of life you may want to have. Open an excel sheet and write down the parameters you are going to base your decision on, and assign a weightage to each parameter as per your priority, like location, amenities: parking, pool, indoor sport activities, area of the house, proximity to your religious establishment, neighborhood, etc. If you plan to live here for the long run, then these factors can considerably affect your everyday happiness level. Score the homes under consideration on the basis of these parameters and select from the top few.

Check your eligibility before you take the plunge:

Control your impulse. Do not pay the token money until you are sure you will get the desired loan amount and at the desired rates. So first check your loan eligibility and the interest rates being offered to you. Note, that different banks offer different interest rates, and there is a scope for negotiation too, do the groundwork before you enter the waters. Also make sure you have the downpayment money with you. Do not resort to a personal loan for funding the downpayment, as the rates here are abnormally high, and you are adding to the overall debt burden.

Check the property:

Seeing the rise in malignant incidents taking place in the real estate industry, one must exercise extreme caution. Some of the checks you can do are:

- ▶ Check the RERA website of the state you are investing in.
- ▶ Ensure that the land title is clear with the help of any lawyer.
- ▶ Check the builder's history, his past projects' status, etc.

- ▶ Check that the land is not disputed.
- ▶ If it is an inherited property, make sure all the legal heirs have penned their consent to the sale.
- ▶ People rush to buy houses near the airport, and later find themselves trapped in legal cases, because of irregularities in papers and disagreement between government authorities. So, if you are buying near the airport, ensure the builder has the legal NOC, utility certificate from the municipality etc., to avoid any hassles later.
- ▶ Do not believe in unrealistic completion timelines.

Insurance:

You can either go for the loan insurance option or you can buy a term plan with a cover equivalent to the loan amount, so in case of your uneventful death, the onus of EMI's doesn't come onto your family's shoulders or they aren't ejected out by the bank in the worst case.

Location:

Many times homebuyers end up buying homes in areas considerably far from the city on the "upcoming area" premise, don't do it if you are planning to live there, the upcoming may mean many years.

So, choose a home, which has the essentials, schools, hospitals, grocery shops, etc., in the vicinity, and is connected through proper roads.

Check for the basic amenities:

Check that the house under consideration has provision for the essentials, like electricity, Gas line, Water supply, security, seepage, no water clogging, etc. You can enquire from the people living around about the number of hours in a day they get water and electricity supply, etc.

So, the above are a few basic points you must pay heed to before you commit to a property. Our house can become our dream home if it falls into place right, it fits into our expectation box, to make this happen you must ensure that the preliminary checks are done, and you have done enough groundwork to make your shelter strong. Lastly, remember that you will only be able to enjoy living in the house if you have mental peace and freedom from any financial worries.

Q. What is your assessment of the FY18 Q4 results so far? Do you see any visible trend in corporate earnings?

Answer: FY18 earnings are expected to come in stronger, primarily attributable to growth in H2FY18 as effects of macroeconomic disruptions and policy changes in multiple sectors settle. Steps taken thus far towards NPA resolution in the banking sector should yield marginal improvement in earnings in the coming quarters. Projection of normal monsoon bodes well for Q1FY19 earnings though the spatial and temporal distribution will be watched. Revival in consumption demand and a nascent industrial capex recovery should further support earnings growth in FY19. The 4QFY18 results are estimated to be robust in terms of net sales and profit growth for (i) auto and FMCG (on consumption demand), (ii) capital goods, cement and infrastructure (on recovery in private capex) (iii) metals and power (on strong global commodity prices/ demand). While asset quality slippages may show signs of improvement, upgradations are still not yet meaningful, that may suppress the banking sector earnings. Information technology and healthcare are expected to post marginally positive results, though telecom could see a muted quarter. In terms of earnings recovery, auto, retail and technology sectors will likely lead the list, supported by improving demand and low base effect.

Q. Kindly brief us on the current NPA situation in the banking sector. How are the public and private sector banks dealing with same?

Answer: Overall, the NPA situation is being tackled aggressively through corrective actions and preventive policies being reinforced. Policy actions include early NPA recognition through stringent bad loan recognition norms, stressed asset resolution under Insolvency and Bankruptcy Code and higher provisioning norm. These measures bode well to confront the problem of NPA at all stages - identification, resolution and prevention of future NPA build-up. At present the NPA issue seems more worrisome for public sector banks which account for nearly 89% of total NPAs in the banking system. However, with higher provisioning and focus on asset quality, the PSU banks are making a gradual turnaround. On the other hand, private banks show an improvement in asset quality and have posted encouraging loan growth in Q4FY18. Factors including the stressed asset recognition/ provisioning under RBI's revised asset quality framework and incremental provisioning for frauds uncovered in various banks could have a bearing on the future earnings for the sector. That said, a new set of enabling provisions under the revised prompt corrective actions (PCA) framework and talks of innovative ways to ease loan burden of lenders are expected to augur well for banks.

Q. The IMF has projected a healthy 7.4% growth for the economy this year and 7.8% the next. How do you think is the economy positioned today and what are the key risks it faces?

Answer: Domestically speaking, major themes that are expected to support a surge in growth include recovery in rural economy, overall improvement in consumption demand and industrial capex recovery. Pick-up in demand as indicated by consumer durable production, auto sales, air traffic, personal loan offtake, etc., could in turn improve capacity utilization levels. Investment-led growth as denoted by capital goods imports, cement production, growth in rail cargo and private projects under implementation indicates build-up of a sustainable strength at micro level in the economy, despite weakness in the macroeconomic gauges. Among the risks, widening of trade deficit due to slower export momentum, increase in fiscal deficit, hardening of core inflation and domestic currency depreciation pose risk to growth. The government spending has moderated, having breached the fiscal deficit target in FY18. This may in turn lower the contribution of government spending to real GDP going forward. However, consumption demand and private capex recovery should support growth. The 2019 election will be a major event impacting risk sentiments for domestic equities.

Q. What has been your fund house strategy for investments in the current markets? How would you differentiate your process from others?

Answer: We follow a steady process of bottom-up approach to stock-picking considering the long term fundamentals of the stock and crucial developments in the company and sector. While broad analysis of economy and various sectors is a starting point, the stress is on a deeper search for businesses and managements creating wealth, some of which could even be in out-of-favour sectors. In our view, our focus on the long term ensures that our research is not biased by short-term cyclical considerations and allows us to take advantage of short-term price volatility in making strategic investment decisions. This approach allows us to focus on superior stock selection, stick to the fund's investment mandate and to continue with the style of investment management without being swayed by momentum style of investing.

Q. What would be your advice to an investor looking for an equity exposure at present levels?

Answer: Improving health of the micro indicators in the economy offers a stable base for long term positive growth trend despite the current valuation levels and weak trend in macroeconomic indicators. Indian market continues to remain reasonably resilient to global market headwinds. From an investment perspective, diversified equity funds with core exposure to large caps and prudent risk-taking in mid/small-cap space may position the investor favorably well to capture medium to long term opportunity presented by the equity markets. Some volatility is likely to persist in 2018 and we suggest that investors may chalk out a suitable investment strategy, enter the market in a staggered fashion and stay invested for the long term so as to tide interim volatility.

Equity MFs log ₹12,400 Cr. inflow in Apr, push AUM to ₹8 lakh Crore.

Investors have pumped in a staggering over ₹12,400 crore in equity mutual funds in April, driving the assets under management to a record ₹8 lakh crore. This is much higher than over ₹6,650 crore inflow seen in such schemes in March, according to the data from the Association of Mutual Funds in India (AMFI). The strong inflow has pushed the asset base of equity mutual funds (MFs) by more than 6% to ₹8 lakh crore at the end of April from ₹7.5 lakh crore in the preceding month. Overall, mutual fund schemes witnessed an inflow of ₹1.4 lakh crore last month as compared to redemptions of ₹50,752 crore in March due to new tax on long-term equity gains. Of this, equity and equity-linked saving schemes saw an inflow of ₹12,409 crore during the period under review. Besides, liquid funds or money market category, witnessed an infusion of over ₹.16 lakh crore. In contrast, a net sum of ₹436 crore and ₹54 crore was pulled out from gilt and gold exchange traded fund (ETF) respectively. The assets base of the MF industry, comprising 42 players, increased to ₹23.25 lakh crore from ₹21.36 lakh crore.

GDP grows 7.7% in Q4; India retains world's fastest growing economy tag Backed by government spending and investment, the economy grew at a seven-quarter high of 7.7% in January-March. But this did not prevent GDP growth, at 6.7% in 2017-18, from falling to its lowest rate in four years of the Narendra Modi government. The fourth-quarter growth rate prompted the finance ministry to say the economy would clock 7.5% growth in 2018-19, the upper range of growth projected by the Economic Survey. The growth rate for 2017-18 was higher than the government's first and second advance estimates and in sync with what the International Monetary Fund, the World Bank and the Economic Survey had estimated. This is the last piece of macroeconomic data before the Reserve Bank of India reviews the monetary policy in June.

Govt meets fiscal deficit target of 3.5% at ₹5.92 trillion for 2017-18

The central government just about met its revised fiscal deficit target for 2017-18. The gap for the year ending March 31 was ₹5.92 trillion, or 3.52% of the full year's nominal Gross Domestic Product (GDP) of ₹167.73 trillion, showed official data. Finance Minister Arun Jaitley, in his 2018-19 budget, had revised the deficit target to ₹5.95 trillion or 3.5% of GDP, upward from the earlier ₹5.46 trillion or 3.2%. The stated reason was disruption in economic activity from lingering effects of demonetisation and rollout of a nationwide goods and services tax (GST).

Investment picks up to a seven-quarter high of 14.4% in Q4 of 2017-18

Investment growth leap- frogged to a seven-quarter high of 14.4% in the fourth quarter of 2017-18, up from the 9.1% in the third quarter, according to the data released by the central statistics office (CSO). However, economists cautioned against interpreting the data as broad-based revival in investment

Tax reforms, low fiscal deficit to expand revenue base in India: Moody's

Tax reforms are likely to expand revenue base in fast growing economies like India but they will be most effective when accompanied by lowering of fiscal deficit and effective management of expenditure, Moody's Investors Service has said. It said most sovereigns have embarked on tax administration and compliance reforms, especially through the centralisation of multiple agencies and increased usage of technology. We believe that tax administration and compliance is likely to be most effective in the Philippines, India, Indonesia and Thailand, Moody's said in a statement.

Core sector growth gains pace, marginally up 4.7% in April Sustained rise in cement production and a spurt in coal output led the combined output of the economy's eight core sectors to grow at a marginally higher pace of 4.7 per cent in April as against 4.4 per cent in March. The pace of growth had been sluggish over the past two months. The eight sectors comprising crude oil, natural gas, refinery products, fertiliser, steel and electricity, contribute about 40 per cent to the total industrial production. In April, six sectors performed better than a month earlier. Double-digit rise in cement production continued to solidify overall growth for six straight months, rising 16.6 per cent as compared to 13.3 per cent in the previous month.
